The General Debate was devoted to "The role of the PABSEC and National Parliaments in the development of interregional cooperation of the Black Sea countries".

The Heads of National Delegations, representatives of the Observers from the National Assembly of the French Republic, the European Parliament, the Inter-parliamentary Assembly of the Member Nations of the Commonwealth of Independent States, the Parliamentary Dimension of the Central-European Initiative and the Parliamentary Assembly of the Belarus-Russia Union as well as guests from Assembly of the Former Yugoslav Republic of Macedonia and from the Assembly of the Arab Inter-Parliamentary Union took part in the General Debate.

The main topic of the General Debate comes as a consequence of the PABSEC's agenda aiming to create legislative basis for overall cooperation in the Black Sea region and assisting the national bodies of executive power in strengthening interaction among the BSEC member states. The speakers underlined the need for multilateral and bilateral cooperation and strengthening of friendly and good neighbourly relations between different states.

During the eleven years since the establishment of BSEC, the role of parliamentary diplomacy has tremendously increased and inter-parliamentary regional organizations have become important actors in the regional political scene. In the past years PABSEC and its eleven national parliaments constitute dynamic democratic instruments for free dialogue and cooperation.

Today, we are living in a constantly changing and interdependent world where integration process is playing a major role. No transport, communication, ecological and other vitally important problems can be resolved unless joint efforts are taken. Therefore, there is an urgent need to consolidate efforts of different countries with the aim to deal with all existing and repeatedly emerging issues through regional economic cooperation.

The parliaments of the PABSEC countries have placed as an objective the development of cooperation in political, economic, trade, social and cultural spheres through an atmosphere of dialogue and solidarity. Thus they contribute to the promotion of trust and good neighborly relations between the states and the establishment of peace and stability.

The participants noted that the tendency towards higher degree of integration within the framework of the Black Sea Economic Cooperation becomes more obvious. Integration is a product of mutually beneficial partnership based upon shared interests of the countries. In order to adequately meet the challenges of the 21st century the Parliaments have to work together in future in the name of sustainable regional prosperity and stability. Closer cooperation between countries will create an atmosphere of mutual understanding, trust and constructive dialogue on most vital problems.

The European Union enlargement to the East will gradually strengthen the EU involvement in the Black Sea area. The Black Sea region presents a particularly important nexus of cultures, religions and peoples. PABSEC and other regional organisation should carry, together with the National Parliaments of the countries involved, its part of burdens, tasks and plans for the attainment of better conditions in the region.

The National Parliaments through their activities continue to make necessary legislative changes with due regard to the implementation of the decisions adopted by the high level meetings of the Heads of State and Governments and the Council of the Ministers of Foreign Affairs of the BSEC member states. It is through their activities that the fulfillment of the goals of BSEC is secured.
